CITY MATTER.
(Reported for the Daily Pennsylvania.

Lehigh Valley Fair.—Wurtzburg, beer containing a certain amount of alcohol, is sold in this and some of the neighboring cities. The sale of this beverage is prohibited by the Pennsylvania statute, and the violation thereof is punishable with a fine, and imprisonment. The Pennsylvania legislature has recently adopted a new statute, making it a crime to sell alcohol in any quantity, and punishable with a fine, and imprisonment. The statute is in force in all the counties of the state, and the sale of alcohol is prohibited in all the cities of the state.

Rowing and Sculling.

The annual regatta on the Schuylkill is fast approaching, and the rowing clubs of the city are preparing for the event. The regatta is scheduled for June 15th, and the courses are laid out on the Schuylkill, with the starting line at the Fairmount Dam, and the finishing line at the Chestnut Street Bridge. The regatta is open to all rowing clubs in the city, and the entries will be accepted until June 10th. The regatta is sponsored by the Philadelphia Rowing Club, and the proceeds will be used to support the club's activities.

The regatta is a major event in the city's social calendar, and it attracts a large crowd of spectators. The regatta is followed by a picnic and a dance at the Fairmount Dam, and the festivities continue into the night. The regatta is a tradition that dates back to the early 1800s, and it is a symbol of the city's rich history and culture.

Rowing and Sculling.

The annual regatta on the Schuylkill is fast approaching, and the rowing clubs of the city are preparing for the event. The regatta is scheduled for June 15th, and the courses are laid out on the Schuylkill, with the starting line at the Fairmount Dam, and the finishing line at the Chestnut Street Bridge. The regatta is open to all rowing clubs in the city, and the entries will be accepted until June 10th. The regatta is sponsored by the Philadelphia Rowing Club, and the proceeds will be used to support the club's activities.

The regatta is a major event in the city's social calendar, and it attracts a large crowd of spectators. The regatta is followed by a picnic and a dance at the Fairmount Dam, and the festivities continue into the night. The regatta is a tradition that dates back to the early 1800s, and it is a symbol of the city's rich history and culture.

Rowing and Sculling.

The annual regatta on the Schuylkill is fast approaching, and the rowing clubs of the city are preparing for the event. The regatta is scheduled for June 15th, and the courses are laid out on the Schuylkill, with the starting line at the Fairmount Dam, and the finishing line at the Chestnut Street Bridge. The regatta is open to all rowing clubs in the city, and the entries will be accepted until June 10th. The regatta is sponsored by the Philadelphia Rowing Club, and the proceeds will be used to support the club's activities.

The regatta is a major event in the city's social calendar, and it attracts a large crowd of spectators. The regatta is followed by a picnic and a dance at the Fairmount Dam, and the festivities continue into the night. The regatta is a tradition that dates back to the early 1800s, and it is a symbol of the city's rich history and culture.

Rowing and Sculling.

The annual regatta on the Schuylkill is fast approaching, and the rowing clubs of the city are preparing for the event. The regatta is scheduled for June 15th, and the courses are laid out on the Schuylkill, with the starting line at the Fairmount Dam, and the finishing line at the Chestnut Street Bridge. The regatta is open to all rowing clubs in the city, and the entries will be accepted until June 10th. The regatta is sponsored by the Philadelphia Rowing Club, and the proceeds will be used to support the club's activities.

The regatta is a major event in the city's social calendar, and it attracts a large crowd of spectators. The regatta is followed by a picnic and a dance at the Fairmount Dam, and the festivities continue into the night. The regatta is a tradition that dates back to the early 1800s, and it is a symbol of the city's rich history and culture.

Rowing and Sculling.

The annual regatta on the Schuylkill is fast approaching, and the rowing clubs of the city are preparing for the event. The regatta is scheduled for June 15th, and the courses are laid out on the Schuylkill, with the starting line at the Fairmount Dam, and the finishing line at the Chestnut Street Bridge. The regatta is open to all rowing clubs in the city, and the entries will be accepted until June 10th. The regatta is sponsored by the Philadelphia Rowing Club, and the proceeds will be used to support the club's activities.

The regatta is a major event in the city's social calendar, and it attracts a large crowd of spectators. The regatta is followed by a picnic and a dance at the Fairmount Dam, and the festivities continue into the night. The regatta is a tradition that dates back to the early 1800s, and it is a symbol of the city's rich history and culture.