June, beside its streams, blooming cabinets, pomegranates, and summer roses, brings in a succession of brilliant and varied scenes, and the traveler must have no eyes to overlook any of its richness.

On the 22d, the day following the dedication of the monument, a large procession of wagons and carriages took place, the speech of the afternoon, by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, was delivered: a review of the day was afterward given, and the names of all the contributors to the monument were read in the order in which they are written on the pedestal. The great monument, with its appropriate statue, and the statue of Washington, is well known to all, and need not be described in detail.

On the 23d, the day of the completion of the monument, the public was invited to attend the dedication of the statue of Washington, which was to take place in the afternoon. The statue was erected in the center of the grounds, and was dedicated by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, who delivered a discourse on the life and character of Washington, and on the importance of a free and independent government. The statue is a beautiful and dignified representation of the great man, and is sure to become a lasting monument to his memory.

On the 24th, the day following the dedication of the statue, the public was invited to attend the consecration of the monument, which was to take place in the afternoon. The consecration was performed by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, who delivered a discourse on the importance of a free and independent government, and on the duty of all citizens to support it. The consecration was a solemn and impressive ceremony, and was attended by a large and enthusiastic crowd.

On the 25th, the day following the consecration of the monument, the public was invited to attend the dedication of the statue of Washington, which was to take place in the afternoon. The statue was erected in the center of the grounds, and was dedicated by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, who delivered a discourse on the life and character of Washington, and on the importance of a free and independent government. The statue is a beautiful and dignified representation of the great man, and is sure to become a lasting monument to his memory.

On the 26th, the day following the dedication of the statue, the public was invited to attend the consecration of the monument, which was to take place in the afternoon. The consecration was performed by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, who delivered a discourse on the importance of a free and independent government, and on the duty of all citizens to support it. The consecration was a solemn and impressive ceremony, and was attended by a large and enthusiastic crowd.

On the 27th, the day following the consecration of the monument, the public was invited to attend the dedication of the statue of Washington, which was to take place in the afternoon. The statue was erected in the center of the grounds, and was dedicated by the Rev. Mr. Greenough, who delivered a discourse on the life and character of Washington, and on the importance of a free and independent government. The statue is a beautiful and dignified representation of the great man, and is sure to become a lasting monument to his memory.